

BEETHAM DECLARES FOR FULL PUBLICITY IN CAMPAIGN FUND

Cadiz, O., June 8.—Declaring for full publicity through newspapers of campaign expenditures prior to—instead of after—primaries or elections, Rupert R. Beetham of this place, speaker of the Ohio House of Representatives, this morning at Columbus filed his declaration of candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor.

The statement follows: "In filing my declaration of candidacy for governor of Ohio I enter the contest with a protest against the extravagant expenditure of money at primary elections. Protests against it have gone up from every neighborhood and editorials have appeared in every paper against this practice. I shall give the voters of Ohio an opportunity to select a candidate not guilty of this act.

"Can it be possible that we are to reach a place in democracy where only the rich, or those backed by strong special interests, can be elected to high office? I do not believe it. This is a nation of common people and such it will remain.

"Some money must be spent for traveling expenses and certain kinds of advertising and these should be known and published before the election instead of after. Little use in locking the stable after the horse is stolen. I shall give to the press the total of my expenditures as the campaign progresses, and shall call upon the other candidates to do the same thing. Lobbyists must register before they are permitted to work about the legislature so the legislators may know who they are and what they represent. Then should not the paid propagandists that go about Ohio working on the voters of the state in the interests of certain candidates also be known to the public? I think so.

"Women going about Ohio today in the interests of certain candidates have stated they are receiving $15 a day for their services. If this be true, could not these facts be known to the other women of Ohio on whom they are calling?

"I shall give my expenditures and promises to the press and the press of Ohio will compel the others to do the same before next August 8th.

The patient spider is the inspiration for one of the most novel veils I have seen this season, a circular veil woven in a fragile mesh exactly like that of the web which catches unsuspecting flies. It is shown in black and in castor tones.

A veil that is selling especially well is of black filet mesh, with the Grecian border outlined in tiny white chenille dots. This is intended to be worn around the crown of the hat.

A veil that is worn a good deal with the tweed suit and sports clothes, is made of widely spaced hexagonal mesh, with a scattering of chenille dots and a border of the same. Amber, it is said, is a color particularly popular in veillings of the moment.

FLAGS AT HALF MAST

Cincinnati, June 9.—Flags on all the city buildings flew at half mast today as a tribute to the memory of Colonel F. W. Galbraith, former national commander of the American Legion, who was killed in an automobile accident at Indianapolis one year ago today. Legion posts throughout the country held memorial services for Colonel Galbraith, who was a Cincinnati. Members of the Galbraith post this city, wore black crepe sleeve decorations.

Flatter and family delightfully entertained the many friends of the young couple at their spacious country home near Fairfield recently. The house was prettily decorated in pink and white crepe paper and pink roses and daisies. More than a hundred friends and relatives were present to congratulate and extend good wishes to this popular young couple.

The evening was spent playing games, and a social time. In accordance with the color scheme, pink and white iced cream and pink frosted angel food cakes were served.

Among the beautiful and useful presents that Mr. and Mrs. Flatter received were aluminum ware, china ware, glass ware and silver ware.

BEAUTY CHATS

BECOMING COLORS

The woman who knows exactly which colors are best suited to her has an enviable gift. Few women realize the enormous importance that color plays in their attire, for color affects not only themselves but everyone they associate with. Almost everyone is susceptible to its influence.

There is the well known case of a man who lived in a house with a red living room for 15 years and then suddenly went crazy. A few months away from the house and he was completely cured. There are any number of cases of people whose eyesight has been strangely affected also by looking too much at red. Red, in fact, is always a dangerous color. Some people are very much depressed by green and some people have a hatred of yellow. There is an old story of a dog who used to bark excitedly whenever he saw anything purple. There are all sorts of queer tales about the effects of colors upon people.

I do not mean to suggest, that you should take all these things into consideration when, for instance, you are choosing a new hat. I only want to suggest, that you choose colors which suit your own temperament. Do not deck yourself out in red if you are a quiet and demure blonde; do not wear purple if you can possibly find any other color. Do not wear vivid shades with a sallow skin and do not combine colors that are incongruous.

If you are too vivid a type you must select colors that will tone down; if you are anemic and pallid and lacking in personality you must select gay combinations that will bring you up. Briefly, you must use your own judgment about the sort of thing you need. Don't wear brown with muddy skin, or tan if you have grey eyes.

Interested.—A woman weighing over 200 pounds should never wear startling colors, if she wants to look her best. The idea is not to appear out of style and prim, as you seem to think, but you should aim to give the impression of less bulk. To do this wear dark colors, although rich materials, and have your clothes cut with long and very simple lines. In suits, the tailoring should be elegant and severely plain and nothing is so smart on a large woman as all black. Whatever is the most becoming will also be the youthful thing for you. If the scarlet hat makes you appear to be larger than one that is not so conspicuous, your choice should be for the latter.

Choose only colors that suit you.

Mary F. B.—If henna did not color your brows you did not use it correctly. Make a paste of the henna with water and after moistening the brows apply it, very hot, to the hairs by using a tiny brush. Let it stay on the brows for several hours, before washing it off.

LAST DAY TO FILE FOR OFFICE FINDS SEVENTEEN ENTERED

Seventeen Republican office seekers besides those who were run for central committeemen, had filed their declarations of candidacy with Clerk Carl Ervin of the Board of Elections up to Friday afternoon.

Candidates have until midnight Friday night in which to file their papers and with only part of the central committee candidates in the race so far, it is anticipated that the majority of these candidates will file later Friday evening.

Up until Friday afternoon, contests were evident for the Republican nomination for sheriff, treasurer and commissioner only. Three candidates have filed for county commissioner, the aspirants being Warren Collett, of Jamestown, Herman Eavey of Xenia Township and M. F. Beal of Xenia.

For Sheriff there are also three candidates, indicating a race for that nomination. They are George Birch present chief deputy, E. E. Lighthiser Xenia who was defeated for the office by the incumbent by only four votes at the last election and Morris Sharp, Jamestown.

For treasurer, there are four in the race, former Sheriff Frank Jackson, who was a candidate for the office last time, J. F. Shoemaker, Goes Station merchant, J. S. Van Eaton, Springfield Valley Township farmer and L. Funderburg, are all seeking the nomination for that office.

Although it has been said that W. B. Bryson, former Representative, would seek to be returned to that office in a campaign against M. A. Broadstone this fall, Mr. Bryson had not filed his declaration of candidacy yet Friday afternoon. Up until that time Representative Broadstone still had a clear field for the nomination.

It is not believed that others seeking nomination for county offices will be opposed. Other officers who have filed are W. J. Davis, County Surveyor; J. K. Williamson, prosecuting attorney; R. O. Wead, county auditor; R. F. Thomas, county recorder; Harvey Elam, clerk of courts, and Dr. R. L. Haines, county coroner.

Pictures will be shown in connection with the lecture of the Chamber of Commerce Friday night, and in Columbus, Cincinnati, Cleveland and St. Paul, Minn.

In appreciation of the two band concerts given by the Cadet Band of the O. S. & S. O. Home, on last Saturday night, and the Saturday night preceding the Chamber of Commerce has invited members of the band to hear and see the illustrated radio lecture Friday evening.

The lecture and pictures will begin promptly at seven o'clock Xenia time in order that local people attending will be free in time to attend the Central High School Commencement exercises at the First M. E. Church. Members of the Chamber of Commerce and their friends are invited to attend the illustrated lecture.

JOB'S

Jaunty Looking Summer Clothes for Small Folks

ELEANOR GRACE SAYS

For picnic use nothing could be nicer than one of those very gay and decorative aprons of pink, blue or green, with bands of cretonne set off by black pipings. It might save a lot of coffee stains and such on your picnic going costume. For a mother who is taking the little ones on an outing an apron of black satteen with bright colored trimmings of cretonne would be just the thing. Either style apron comes at only $1.00.

Speaking of aprons—if I were intending to make one I would surely investigate the gingham and percale remnant basket. I saw several very pretty pieces of gingham percales and Peter Pan prints in it. Some pieces had as much as two and one-third yards others a yard and a half and one three yards in the piece. Many pieces are abundantly large for children's dresses. The prices are very low.

Luncheon sets of blue bordered white madras have such an invitingly dainty, cool look that you immediately want to buy a set for use on your own table. For the summer cottage they would be charming. The cloth, and six napkins to match, comes at $4.50.

Now that summer vacation trips are matters of the immediate future travelling bags and suit cases take on fresh interest. If your old ones have become too shabby to accompany you on another outing come in and look over our attractive stock. You can find travelling bags priced to suit you anywhere from six to forty dollars.

Mothers, if you are tired and the children are fretful while you are shopping, try the luxury of a few minutes rest in one of the comfortable rockers in our rest room. If you have a headache a few minutes rest on the long divan there would be wonderfully refreshing. The rest room was fitted up for your comfort. You are very welcome there.

MAJOR NICHOLSON HELD GUILTY OF "PRUSSIANISM" LETTER.

Major Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson about whose head has waged a military turmoil since he wrote a letter to President Harding in February charging "Prussianism" exists in the regular army was found guilty of this technical violation of army regulations by a Court-Martial Board at Camp Dix, but on the more serious charges involving his discipline and integrity was acquitted on all specifications.

The accused officer fully acknowledged he sent the letter to the President, so the findings of the court are regarded by his friends in the service as a signal victory.

As a penalty for violation of the Ninety-sixth Article of War in writing and publishing the President's letter, Major Wheeler-Nicholson was sentenced by the court to a fine of fifty files. This means he is put back in the line of promotion behind fifty other majors whom he now ranks.

In a brilliant closing argument for the prosecution, Lieutenant Colonel Allen J. Greer, trial judge advocate, said the whole case of Major Wheeler-Nicholson could be summed up in the title of the son, "Everybody's Out of Step But Jim." He declared the accused statements in the letter to the President, and his subsequent utterances, showed amazing recklessness.

"According to Major Wheeler-Nicholson's idea, any attempt to restrain him has been tyranny. Any orders applying to him which he does not like he has styled 'Prussianism,' whatever that may mean.

VETO OF BONUS BILL IS FORECAST.

If the McCumber Soldier Bonus Bill passes the Senate, as contemplated by Republican leaders, it will be vetoed by President Harding. The President's position on the pending legislation was thus communicated to the Senate through persons of unmistakable authority.

Mr. Harding has repeatedly expressed his opposition to a Soldiers' Bonus Bill not containing provisions for raising the revenue necessary to meet the expense. In the Senate, however, responsible Republicans have adhered to the belief that the President would acquiesce to their plans.

Senator McCumber, of North Dakota, who faces a stiff primary fight at the end of this month, has proceeded to frame and report a Soldiers' Bonus Bill promising the utilization of the foreign debt to meet the payments.

The President was represented as not only more insistent upon a bonus bill which pays for itself, but chagrined at the unwillingness of Senate leaders to take him at his word. He was said to have expressed willingness to have Congress proceed as it would. But his object now, according to those outlining his views, was to let the Senate know once and for all that he meant what he said.

MRS. BERGDOLL LOSES IN SUPREME COURT.

The Supreme Court denied Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll, Charles Braun, James E. Romig, Albert S. Mitchell and Harry Schup to bring up for review the cases decided against them in the United States District Court at Philadelphia and affirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals.

They were convicted of having aided Erwin R. and Grover C. Bergdoll, sons of Mrs. Bergdoll, to evade military service and were sentenced to fines and imprisonment, the prison sentences to be remitted providing the fines were paid by a date fixed by the Court.

While the case was on appeal to the Supreme Court the fines were paid under protest and it was held by the courts that this disposed of the issues, the judgment of the court having been satisfied.

JEFFERSON DAVIS.

The man who never opened his mouth without putting his foot in it must have been a direct ancestor of Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi. No matter what the subject, he "cannot open his mouth but out there flies a blunder." Hear him on so innocent a subject as the anniversary of the birth of Jefferson Davis. He is speaking in the Mount Vernon Methodist Church.

First he praises Abraham Lincoln, saying he speaks for the South, and then wants to know why the North continues to entertain "a prejudice bordering almost upon malignity" against the Southern leader, Davis. "Why," he asks, "should a generous and fair people withhold just estimate at this time of the leader of a cause when they have forgiven all others who participated in that cause?"

The Northerner who hates Jefferson Davis while forgiving the soldiers and statesmen he led may still exist in spots, but so does the Southerner who forgives Lincoln while at the same time hating all the other "damn Yankees." Both classes are in a minority. The war of secession is sixty years behind us.

PRESIDENT AND KING EXCHANGE GREETINGS.

The cablegram of felicitation sent by President Harding to King George on the occasion of the latter's birthday and the reply thereto were made public Monday by the State Department. President Harding's message under date of June 3 was as follows:

"Please accept the hearty felicitations of my fellow countrymen on this anniversary of your Majesty's birth and my own earnest wishes for your personal health and happiness and the hope that your beneficent reign will continue an era of great prosperity for the British Empire."

His Majesty replied:

"I sincerely thank you, Mr. President, for the very kind words in which you on your own behalf and that of your fellow-countrymen have greeted me on the anniversary of my birthday and for your good wishes for the prosperity of the British Empire. I greatly appreciate this message of good will, for you know how strong are my feelings for your country and its people."

Some of the patrons of the Spring Hill School are anxious to have an eighth grade added to the school so that pupils can go

The school enumerators have completed their duties and made their report. It shows that the city of Xenia contains 2298 youths of school age.

BOOK PALSHIP

To me each day adds new love and glory to my books. I cannot say that I read more as the years advance—but I think much more on what I read.

So that each beloved book grows in nearness and becomes more a companion to me. As though my library had favorite paths, I am led to my books—and each path leads me to particular book for the mood in which I find myself.

I like to open a book to a passage that has inspired me in other days and I like to get new viewpoints. I find each time an occasion for inward joy—for a great thought is met like a sunset, which is never the same though always full of interest and beauty.

A book is the essence of the best that a man is, no matter what his reputation may be.

And so it is that we usually find the real man in his book.

All about me are closed books. Most of those who wrote them are no longer moving in this world. Yet how real and living the se thinkers as the pages of their books are turned! How near you come to know even the little intimacies that gathered about them, as tiny flowers hug the rock which protects them.

I never finish a book but I see with my mind's eye the favorite paths, haunts, and hobbies of him who wrote. There is nothing quite so fine as palship with a book.

Settle in your favorite chair, or walk out into the thick woods and there take from your pocket one of these pals. What serenity of soul and what calmness of spirit as the thoughts rush forth like water from a cool spring!

The sadly lonely man is he who has never known the love of a book.

hope that your beneficent reign will continue an era of great and to redeem the loosed drifters who smoke and chew and go to seed. They are not dreary cranks or croakers, they go to battle wearing bells; they'll not insist that foolish smokers should all be placed in noisome cells. They will not ask for statutes drastic, to make the brier pipe a crime; their program's friendly and elastic, a novelty in this fierce time. They hope to win by moral suasion a triumph o'er the filthy weed; and, though I smoke, on this occasion I say to all the bunch, God speed! For I am weary of reformers who have "Thou shalt not" on the brain; I'm tired of seeing noisy stormers who swat me first and then explain. If some one breaks the pipe I'm smoking and tells me smoking is a sin, I think I'd like to see him stoking where brimstone's heaped in every bin. But if some fellow, smiling sweetly, reproaches me for burning hay, he'll doubtless capture me completely, and see me throw my pipe away.

The baccalaureate service of the university will be held Sunday, June 11, at 9:45 in the auditorium of Calloway Hall, at Wilberforce.

BISHOPS ENVOIUS

London, June 9—"How the bishops must envy Mr. Harvey's calves," said the Daily Express today in commenting upon the American ambassador's appearance at court last night in knickerbockers.

"FROM WINCHESTER TOWN TO SAVE THE DAY"

For many years, in the old Quartermaster Building on Governors Island, New York harbor, the chief object of interest was Winchester, the famous horse General Philip Sheridan, dashing cavalry leader, rode in the Civil War. After his death, Winchester was "mounted," saddled and equipped as he was when General Sheridan saved the day by his twenty-mile gallop to re-form his shattered lines. Winchester has now been removed to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, after a fitting ceremony.

A Reader Friend has written to ask me to publish a list of laxative foods. Laxative foods include most fruits and vegetables, and cereal foods and breads containing the whole of the cereal grain. Bran and oatmeal are especially good. Here are two laxative menus—the first one for dinner and the second for supper or lunch:

Lamb Chops
Mashed Potatoes
Either boiled onions or cabbage
Bran Bread
Fruit Dessert
Coffee
Bran Bread: (Kindly contributed by "H. L. C.") "One cup of white flour; two cups of cornmeal or of wholewheat flour—or these two together, half in half, three cups of bran, two level teaspoons of shortening; two teaspoons each of soda and baking powder if sour milk is used; or if sweet milk is used, add six teaspoons of baking powder; also add one tablespoon sugar and two teaspoons of salt. Sift dry ingredients except the bran, then mix in the bran and add enough sweet or sour milk to make a stiff dough (after the melted shortening is added). The dough

G. W. C. PERRY III; NO HOPE FOR RECOVERY

Columbus, June 9—G. W. C. Perry, superintendent of the Ohio board of pardon and parole, is critically ill at Grant Hospital.

An operation was performed last night, but attending surgeons held out no hope for his recovery.

First complaining of a pain in his ear about five weeks ago, a minor operation puncturing the ear drum was performed three weeks later, members of his family said last night. Tuesday, however, he was unable to leave his bed and rapidly became worse. He was unconscious all day yesterday and his condition rapidly became critical.

According to Dr. Bruce E. Indsey, Mr. Perry has an infection of the middle ear, similar to mastoiditis.

YORK DENOUNCES CARD PLAYING AND THEATERS

Cincinnati, June 9.—Sergeant Alvin York, the world war hero, denounced card playing and the theaters as "lures of the devil" in an address at a camp meeting under the auspices of God's Bible School here this morning.

"It's true people in the Bible danced, but I don't believe they danced as they do today," the sergeant declared. "I never go to the theatre or motion picture shows and do not ever intend to."

"However, I'm only a private in God's army and not a second lieutenant, so I don't intend to force my standards on any one else," he concluded.

AKRON CITIZEN GAINS 15 POUNDS TAKING TANLAC

"I Don't Feel Like I Ever Had a Sick Day in My Life," Declares Inspector Miller.

"Besides restoring my health, Tanlac actually built me up fifteen pounds in weight, and I now weigh more than I ever did in my life," said Earl F. Miller, 1144 Murry Ave., Akron, Ohio, head inspector for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

"I had a severe case of influenza, suffered a set back and was left in mighty bad shape. My appetite was so poor I could hardly bear the sight of food, and I could scarcely digest a thing that I managed to eat. I had terrible pains in my chest, and, in fact, just ached all over. I was so run down, I was very easy to take cold, just couldn't get my weight or strength back, and had to lose at least two days a week from work."

"However, Tanlac has relieved me of all my troubles. I have been built up fifteen pounds in weight and I'm so strong and healthy I don't feel like I ever had a sick day in my life. I think Tanlac is the greatest medicine ever made."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

Two cities. The cars and tracks are in good condition, the service is regular and dependable, travel is safe and the rates as low as may be without impairment of service. When bad weather comes, or the snow begins to fly, the company does not run its cars into the barn, but keeps them going, not waiting for the snow to melt, or for someone else to clear the way. Many times when you are at home and asleep a heavy snow falls. The company does not sleep but sends its men out to clear the way that your cars may be ready to serve you at break of day.

It is the patronage and co-operation of the public that makes this service possible and when it is withdrawn the service will suffer and may be lost. Today, as in the days when the Rapid Transit line was in operation, there is traffic sufficient for only one transportation line between Dayton and Xenia. An electric line and bus line cannot both survive and the people must choose which they will have. Every fare paid to the bus line is taken from the electric line and hurts it just so much. If enough of its income is diverted to the bus line to make it impossible to meet its charges it must quit. This has happened in some places where the people have not awakened to the fact, soon enough to prevent abandonment of electric lines. It is well established by experience that the buses cannot operate as cheaply as the electric cars and continued operation at less than railway fares always results in financial disaster to the bus operators. When they are able to hold on till the electric car must quit, it inevitably happens that the bus fares are raised to pay expenses, make good previous losses and pay a profit and the fares then fixed are always higher than the electric car fares. Furthermore, the service always proves inadequate and unsatisfactory and the community is always glad to return to the electric car where that is possible.

Transportation is a necessity of such importance that, tried and satisfactory means should not be crippled and destroyed when experience points so clearly to the defects of the substitute. The best assurance a city can have that it will progress is to have its public utilities in good financial condition so that they can meet the demands of growth and progress. Where there is only enough traffic for one, the effects of dividing patronage between two is apparent. Neither will have enough income to meet the requirements.

You will not have to look very far to see what happened to electric lines where buses were allowed to enter the field in competition. One after another has been abandoned and torn up and as soon as that happened the buses raised their fares three or four times. Did the communities benefit by this condition? No, they found the transportation provided by the buses, not only inadequate but far more expensive and inconvenient than that provided by the electric line. When winter came with its snow, did the buses operate as regularly as the electric line? No, the buses remained in the garages until someone else had blazed the trail and made a road for them.

Think for a moment of the transportation facilities afforded by the Dayton & Xenia line between these two cities. The cars and tracks are in good condition, the service is regular and dependable, travel is safe and the rates as low as may be without impairment of service. Where there is only enough traffic for one, the effects of dividing patronage between two is apparent. Neither will have enough income to meet the requirements.

You will not have to look very far to see what happened to electric lines where buses were allowed to enter the field in competition. One after another has been abandoned and torn up and as soon as that happened the buses raised their fares three or four times. Did the communities benefit by this condition? No, they found the transportation provided by the buses, not only inadequate but far more expensive and inconvenient than that provided by the electric line. When winter came with its snow, did the buses operate as regularly as the electric line? No, the buses remained in the garages until someone else had blazed the trail and made a road for them.

Think for a moment of the transportation facilities afforded by the Dayton & Xenia line between these two cities. The cars and tracks are in good condition, the service is regular and dependable, travel is safe and the rates as low as may be without impairment of service. When bad weather comes, or the snow begins to fly, the company does not run its cars into the barn, but ran to the toll house at the park entrance, but the man who responded to her call for help there, was unable to do anything to attempt a rescue. The alarm was spread to the village, and Bob Denning rated as an expert swimmer, repeatedly dived into the pool in an attempt to recover the body. The boat used for her recovery was three-quarters of a mile from the scene, and had to be obtained by automobile. The boat was lowered over the cliff with a rope and it was only a few minutes after the vessel had been launched that the body was brought to the surface.

MCKINLEY SCHOOL GIRL IS DROWNED THURSDAY IN CLIFTON

Mr. Smith, who felt a responsibility for the children under his care, was broken down Thursday night following the tragedy. Although a good swimmer, he said Friday that he had not become accustomed to the water yet this summer, and became exhausted after his attempts to recover the child before she went down the third time, although he did everything possible to save the girl.

The scene of the drowning is one of the most dangerous swimming spots in the park. It is the largest body of water below the falls, and said to be the deepest in the park, being about 35 feet in depth. It is fed by springs and the bottom is uneven and covered with step-offs. The death of the little girl is believed to be the fifth or sixth in memory that has taken place there by drowning.

Members of the picnic party kept a vigil over the body, awaiting the arrival of J. H. Whitmer, undertaker of the city, who was notified after uttering at resuscitation had failed. Relatives were asked to notify the child's parents of the tragedy, and the body was brought to the home late Thursday night. Dr. R. L. Haines, county coroner, conducted a temporary inquest in the death Thursday night and pronounced death due to accidental drowning.

The graduates of McKinley Junior High School wore the gingham dresses they had made under direction of their teachers at the commencement exercises Thursday and Henrietta had worn her gown to the picnic. She also had on a high school ring, given her by her sister, Mrs. Harry Wertz, as a graduation present, and which she gave to Mrs. Laycock before entering the water. She was said to be a bright child in her studies and had expected to enter Central High School next fall. She had been in swimming both Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, and was fond of the water.

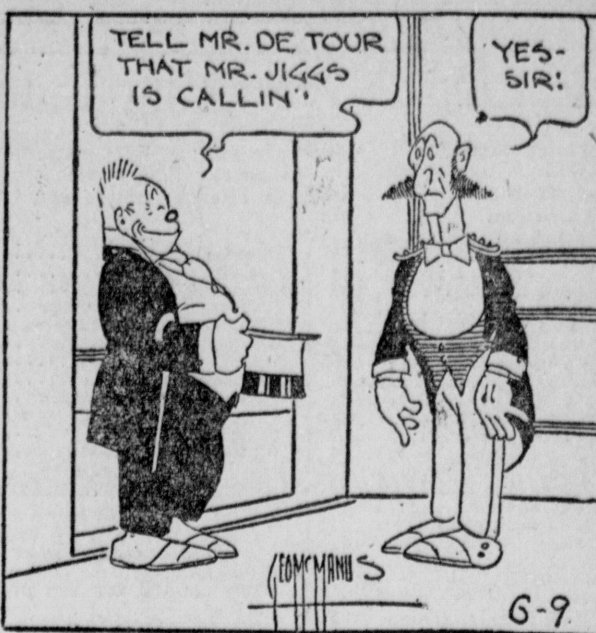

Surviving the child are her parents Mr. and Mrs. Carey West, of North West Street, two brothers, Carey and James of Cleveland, a sister, Mrs. Harry Wertz, of this city, and a younger brother, Carl at home. Her brother, James West, who travels for the Western Union Company, was in Dayton at the time of the tragedy and came to this city Thursday night. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

ROTARY AND KIWANIS TO STAGE BENEFIT BALL GAME IN INTERESTS OF BOYS' CAMP

With the announcement, Thursday necessary to the establishment of the evening, that baseball teams representing the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs of this city will clash at Washington Park June 28, came the statement that the game will be staged as a benefit performance in the interests of the proposed Boy's Camp, which the Kiwanis is undertaking to support this summer.

The camp, the site of which has not yet been selected, will be conducted for eight weeks during the summer, tentative plans calling for the opening June 22. It is estimated that in the neighborhood of 100 boys will be accommodated in the four periods into which the camp will be divided. The Boy Scouts organization will likely lead off in the outing and will occupy the camp for the first ten days, after which there will be an intermission of several days before the next camp opens.

The camp is for the purpose of giving boys of the city the benefits of outdoor life under competent supervision and instruction, members of the Kiwanis Club in charge of the plans announced. Any boy, who wishes to join the camp may make application at the Chamber of Commerce rooms and will be assigned to a certain period when the outing begins. The charge to the boy for the ten days' outing will be estimated only on the amount necessary to board the individual boy, it was announced Thursday evening. This will be $11.00, and for those boys who are not able to meet the amount, ways are being devised to help them earn the sum.

All proceeds from the baseball game between Kiwanis and Rotary will go to the purchase of tents, cots and kitchen equipment and other supplies necessary to the establishment of the camp, it is announced by those in charge of the movement.

Realizing the importance of a boy's camp to the youth of the community, the Kiwanis Club determined to do what it could toward making this outing possible for all the boys of the community, who wish to participate. With this in mind, through the co-operation of the Rotary Club plans for a benefit baseball game between teams representing the two clubs were formed. Rotary has announced that it will have a team in the field on the day designated and it is understood that former diamond stars of both clubs will don discarded uniforms of years ago and cross bats for the championship of the city.

Tickets for the benefit game will go on sale next week, and will be obtainable from boys of the city many of whom will attend the camp during the summer. Members of the committee in charge of the project said, Thursday evening, that they expected a large sale of tickets, pointing out that only by the financial success of the ball game would it be possible to establish the camp idea as an institution in Xenia, which this year and in years to come will enable many boys, who would not otherwise have an outing to get it at small cost. The full proceeds of the day will be used to take care of the expenses of the camp. Probable expenses include cost of all equipment, salary of instructor, who will probably be Austin Black of McKinley Junior High School, wages of cook and possible help to needy boys, all of which will total several hundred dollars those in charge say.

FOUR DANCING FEET

BY JANE PHELPS

How Gertie watched for the postman and then how she treasured the letters she received from Tom, is but the usual story of every young girl very much in love with the man she is going to marry.

Tim wrote enthusiastically of the ranch. "It's the one grand place," he said. "I ride a pony every day, and the chink shows me all over the place. Mrs. Black, she's the woman who takes care of the house, is awful nice to me, but fusses. The other day I got caught in a storm and she made me go to bed and gave me some kind of tea made out of weeds. It was awful nasty and Tom laughed at her and said a wetting wouldn't hurt me, that she never had been a boy or she'd know it wouldn't. Her a boy! Gee, but it was funny!"

"I feed the chickens, find the eggs, and I have learned to shoot, the foreman showed me, he's a peach! A great big long-legged fellow but he knows everything. He brands the cattle, and the horses, and almost runs the ranch. Tom says he's the best foreman he ever had. I'm going to be a foreman when I grow up. The chink cook makes pancakes for me, and he's a wonder. Tom is awful busy sometimes I don't see home all day, but I ain't lonesome there's always something to do."

I got a dog. His name is Bobby. Tom gave him to me for my very own. He stands on his hind feet and begs when he is hungry, and says his prayers at night, and does lots of stunts, jumps over sticks, and everything. He's black, and has long curly hair, and short legs. I'm going to bring him home with me when I come. I don't use a cane no more, and my busted leg is just as good as the other one. I forgot to tell you the chink cook makes tamales for me, and lots of things we don't have in New York. I used to think that was the only place but I'll tell the world it ain't no place for kids. This is the life out here in the country. When I say so to Tom, he always laughs at me, and says: 'I hope Gerties will think so.' He is always sending me or the Chink to the Post Office to see if there is letters. When I bring one from Gertie he always gets gay and we have a good time.

"I hope Ma don't cry because I'm gone. 'Cause I'm havin' the time of my life, which I could stay here always—if Ma was here."

Yours truly, Tim."

They laughed and cried over Tim's letter. "Yours truly, Tim," seemed ridiculously funny to Gertie.

"It's just like a business letter would end," she said laughingly. "I think it's a nice letter," Mrs. Cummings returned. "He sure is havin' a good time, God bless him. I hopes it won't make him not want to go to school when he gits back. Livin' so free and easy."

"Don't worry! Tim wants an education, Ma, and he's bound to get it. Gertie's Butterfly Dance had become very popular. Fagin had provided her a handsome costume, and she was encored nightly. As yet no one knew of her engagement. She had talked it over with her mother and they had decided that a month's warning would be sufficient. Fagin was pleased and kind, but if he knew he was to lose Gertie he might possibly put someone in her place and Gertie wanted to make as much as possible.

"I would like to be married in a white dress, but I can't afford it," she said when Mrs. Arnold talked to her of the wedding. "The blue serge will be more appropriate anyway. And a good many people are married in their going away dress, so Jennie's teacher told me." The teacher had taken a great interest in Gertie's love affair, and had helped her in many ways with her sensible advice.

"Well, I hope you'll be happy way off there. But you'll be lonesome away from New York, and your folks. Lilly says she's as soon be dead as live in the country. She's a real City girl, she is."

"I love the country Mrs. Arnold and while I shall miss Ma and the children, Tom says they can visit us, and I can come home when I want to."

"You're a lucky girl, Gertie, I'm awful worried over my Lilly. But I've always had a hard time, seems like it's goin' to keep up long as I live."

Gertie tried to reassure her, she was so happy she longed to see everyone she knew happy also.
